Respect in the Workplace training is required for all California employees to understand appropriate and respectful workplace behavior. This interactive webinar is specifically for employees who do not have a supervisor/manager role. We will identify the most often cited types of workplace harassment, discrimination and inappropriate behavior by evaluating real-life situations and looking at examples that may or may not cross the line. We will also review abusive conduct and the consequences of workplace harassment. This 75-minute webinar is an efficient and convenient way to raise employees' awareness and meet the requirements of the State of California.

Who Should Attend? Non-supervisory employees (this training is not for supervisors and managers).
