Respect in the Workplace training is required for all California employees to understand appropriate and respectful workplace behavior. This interactive webinar is specifically for employees who do not have a supervisor/manager role. We will identify the most often cited types of workplace harassment, discrimination and inappropriate behavior by evaluating real-life situations and looking at examples that may or may not cross the line. We will also review abusive conduct and the consequences of workplace harassment. This webinar is an efficient and convenient way to raise employees' awareness and meet the requirements of the State of California.

Who Should Attend? Non-supervisory employees (this training is not for supervisors and managers).
